

Nature and Political Normativity in Ancient Philosophy

April 15th–16th, 2016

Munich School of Ancient Philosophy (MUSAΦ)
Leopoldstr. 11b, 4th Floor, Room 433

Sponsored by the DFG-Forschergruppe „Natur in politischen Ordnungsentwürfen:
Antike – Mittelalter – Frühe Neuzeit”

Friday, April 15th

- 11:30–13:00 Dominic Scott (Oxford): ‘The nature of the philosopher-rulers in Plato’s Republic’
- 15:00–16:30 Béatrice Lienemann (Frankfurt): ‘Aristotle on the Rationality of Women and its Consequences for the Accountability of their Actions’
- 17:00–18:30 Philipp Brüllmann (LMU): ‘Nature and psychology in Cicero’s Republic’

Saturday, April 16th

- 9:30–11:00 Christopher Noble (LMU): ‘Political Virtues and Human Nature in Plotinus’
- 11:30–13:00 Tim O’Keefe (Georgia State): ‘The Normativity of Nature in Epicurean Ethics and Politics’
- 15:00–16:30 George Karamanolis (Vienna): ‘Early Christian Philosophers on Society and Political Norms’